

Finding Buderus Serial Numbers:

Buderus Boilers

All Buderus boiler boxes contains multiple labels. These labels can be misleading as there are many numbers on them. However the label on the right is the only one which contains a serial number. The 63034203 number that is listed on each label is the part number. The 18 digit serial number can be found under the bar code. All Buderus boiler serial numbers can be found on the outside of the box on one label, and will look similiar to the example shown. The arrow points out the serial number, which is enlarged on the under it.

Each boiler also has the serial number on the rating label. The rating label can be found on the boiler cover (in the example shown, a G115 boiler, the rating label is on the top right and is pointed out with an arrow). The images shown on the right where on the label the serial number can be found and what it looks like. This will be the same on all boiler rating labels.

Buderus Tanks

Buderus tanks have similar serial numbers that can be found just like the boiler serial numbers. On the left is the serial number found on the label outside of the packaged tank. The serial number is found underneath the bar code on the label (marked with an arrow and enlarged below). On the right is the rating label found on each tank and the serial number can be found in two places on this label; in the middle where it is labeled "serial number" and on the very bottom.

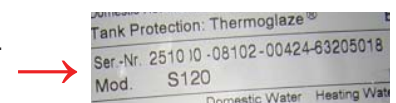

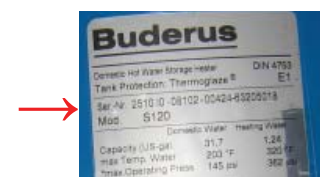

New Buderus Products

Newly introduced products such as the G125BE and the GB312 boilers have new labeling. On the outside box label you will find two bar codes with numbers beneath them. Only one contains the serial number and states "ser-no" before it (marked with an arrow and enlarged below).

The image on the right is the rating label which appears on Buderus boilers and tanks with the new serial number format. The arrows point to the serial numbers and it is enlarged below.
